4th Edition

Hello Lakeland High School, and welcome to The Lakeland Letter! We are a student led organization, dedicated to writing stories about what is important to us as Lakeland Students. When we first started this newspaper, we really wanted to give updates on Lakeland happenings that are relevant to students, rather than force the same old updates over and over, never actually reporting on what matters to us as teenagers. We hope to write a few issues every year, and report on topics like sports, entertainment, general Lakeland activities, and the arts. We are led by current seniors Lucy Martin and Katie Ginopolis as founders and co-editors in chief. We want to make a difference at our school by having a student published newspaper, reporting on student issues. We promise to give everyone at Lakeland a voice to be heard, and can't wait to continue this journey!

Lakeland's New Backpack Policy: For the Students or Against Us?

Sophia Paily

Over the summer Lakeland High School Administration introduced a new policy that would begin on the first day of school. For the 2022-2023 school year students will not be allowed to bring backpacks to school and into class. Initially, students were puzzled, getting out of the routine Lakeland students were used to for many years pushed students to think outside of the box and bring their back-to-school essentials in binders, purses, tote bags, and even sacks.

The recent increase in violence on school campuses has led Lakeland staff to implement a policy to ensure the safety of their students. Additionally banning backpacks was implemented to prevent blockage in classrooms to ensure that you and the teacher can easily move around the classroom if need be. We asked a few students to explain how the recent switch has affected their routine.

Upperclassman Sophia Moyer gives an honest and negative perspective of this policy, the same view many

"The amount of frustration I experience every day solely because of my locker is a lot to adjust to"

students initially held, as she goes on to say, "My locker is broken so it makes me late to every class just trying to get it open, not to mention that my backpack doesn't even fit in my locker. The amount of frustration I experience every day solely because of my locker is a lot to adjust to, especially in my third year here at Lakeland." Many students including me and you were confused and frustrated with jammed locks and broken doors. This is sure to frustrate anyone who has not used their locker in the past three or four years, and may have not even known where to find their lockers upon hearing the news.

Most students were upset with this decision, especially our seniors who had been accustomed to wearing their backpacks the whole day. However, positive views have come into the light since adjusting to the change. A senior Haley Norton reports that since the no backpack policy she enjoys not having to carry her stuff with her all day. "I did not like the policy at first and when I went back to school shopping I tried to squeeze my supplies into one binder which was a mess and frustrated me at first, I will say it is a relief to not carry my backpack around, I never noticed in the three years how much backpacks weighed me down and crowded up the hallways."

With a significant change as this there will always be split opinions, at the start of the school year, students found themselves struggling with time management in the halls. The downsides to talk about his students not having everything they need, or being late to class because of having to stop at lockers.

"It is a relief to not carry my backpack around"

Surely the reaction of students at first was alarming, but they found other ways to switch up their routine. Without the fuss of going through your bag trying to find the right folders and books is eliminated for the students at Lakeland. Creativity filled the halls as students expressed their interests with pins on their bags, painted totes, and muchmore. Lakeland students found a unique way to adjust to this change and show off their creative side at school. The need for more protection on school grounds is crucial to provide a sense of safety for all students, and we are glad to see the school board taking action on this issue.

Throwback to the 2000s with Hoco Rewind!

Lucy Martin and Katie Ginopolis

Lakeland High School had their annual Homecoming dance on October 8th! After a spirit week filled with cafeteria games, a great pep assembly, and an amazing football game, Lakeland debuted their new Homecoming parade to precede the dance the following day.

Before the dance even happened, the Pep Assembly, Tailgate, and Hoco King, Queen, and Court had to be figured out. Leadership planned homecoming from beginning to finish. The Pep Assembly was taken on by a group of students that had a great time planning it. Senior Andrew Furlotte noticeably built a t-shirt cannon for the event and the whole committee worked hard for the month leading up to the event to bring us unforgettable memories like Mr. Lebott and Ms. Beckett dancing to Pitbull and getting to see Ms. Held and Dr. Knudson slimed.

The Tailgate also returned this year to Lakeland for the first time in about 20 years! It was an amazing event, with a bounce-house obstacle course, a dunk tank (thanks Mr. Head and Mr. Wenglin for agreeing to get dunked in 40 degree weather), and free Kona Ice and food for all those who attended. Seniors Lucy Martin and Abby Deloney planned the event, and it had a great turnout of a couple hundred Eagles who braved the cold to come celebrate the game. We also want to take a second to congratulate all of the Homecoming Courts! Each grade picked great people to represent them and get the crowns. Senior couple Owen Mladenoff and Sofia Henry won King and Queen, well deserved for a couple who has been together going on 5 years and won Freshman Court 3 years ago.

The planning of the dance itself took weeks of preparation. Zuly Reyes, a senior who helped plan the dance stated, "Planning wasn't as hard as I thought it would be." She elaborated on the challenges and drawbacks, talking about the lack of decorations and how the leadership class persevered. While decorating, the size of the walls was underestimated, but with hard work and previous planning, the leadership class was able to overcome that challenge and succeed in decorating before the dance on Saturday. A big thank you to leadership for making the week preceding and the dance itself possible!

The throwback theme of the dance was well loved by many. Senior Jason Slicker, who also took part in planning the dance, stated “they were by far the best decorations we’ve had at homecoming.” The hallways lined with decorations reminding us of our childhood was great, it allowed everyone to relate to something and connected people through that, especially for the seniors who had the chance to look back on everything from the past.

Lakeland Letter's Top Picks for Fall 2022

- ★ The Hunger Games
- ★ Ninth House
- ★ The Love Hypothesis
- ★ The Seven Husbands of Evelyn Hugo
- ★ The Secret History

Books:

The dance itself was one for the books, with great lights and a DJ that knew how to cater to an audience. The energy within the crowd on the dance floor was alive and care-free, as people danced and enjoyed themselves. Emma Arnold, a senior who attended the dance expressed, “I think it went well. Everything was organized and decorated well. The DJ was also playing good music.” During the dance, snacks and drinks were provided in the cafeteria for students to regenerate and enjoy their times. The food and refreshments were donated and made for another great component of the dance.

Overall, the Homecoming Dance was a great success! Students thoroughly enjoyed their time and everything went very smoothly. A big thank you to all the students, staff, and parents who helped out!

The Student Mental Health Crisis

McKinley Pietila

School can be a stressful environment for many, with the stress of grades, peers, and parents stacking up to affect how students think of themselves. I interviewed people from both Lakeland and Walled Lake Central, from different grades to see how school really makes students feel. When I asked them, “Does school affect mental health? And if so, in what ways and what causes?”, they all agreed on one main thing: school does affect mental health, in a negative way for almost all.

Freshman Allison Swift says that “Factors such as bullying, fear of bullying, and extra homework negatively affects mental health. Romances in school can also affect mental health in a negative way.” Break ups that either happen with someone in school or someone outside of school can really affect your mental health, causing students to lose motivation and not want to come to school in order to avoid seeing that person over and over, every day.

“We are worked down constantly. The only thing keeping many of us afloat is that our friends are here.”

Next I interviewed sophomore Toby Hudson. Toby agreed that yes, school does affect mental health in a negative way and made the point that “Adults work a 9-5 as a standard. Eight hour work day. We do that already at school. Then you add say two hours of homework, and the teenage brain needs about ten hours of sleep a night. As long as two hours a day social time to be healthy, and that’s not even counting commuting anywhere, or even eating.” All of this affects students and causes them constant stress and anxiety, with not enough hours in the day to do everything expected from us. “We are worked down constantly. The only thing keeping many of us afloat is that our friends are here. And the fact that we’re told that if we don’t do well in high school and then college that we’ll not be able to get a job. And without a job we have no money. Without money, well, we’re dead.” This quote really encompasses the amount of different things that are put on students’ plates and just how much that can affect them. Junior Delmarys Rodriguez agrees, saying that their main stress comes from “the pressure of parents to insist that they must have all their grades at the top.” Parents breathe down their student’s necks, wanting them to do their best and get great grades, which gets harder with the extra pressures from school, life, and work, especially as you move up grades in school. Jack Semrau, from Walled Lake Central, points out what most students are thinking. It's not that we hate school, or the concept of learning, but school in recent years has become more draining than educational. "When learning is for rewards and grades it loses its meaning and instead becomes a boring task that you have to do in order to continue the rest of your life and aspirations in the future."

If you ask any student if they enjoy school, the answer will almost certainly be no. For something that everyone under 18 is forced to do for 35 hours a week, one would hope that more effort is placed into making this huge chunk of our lives be positive, instead of a chore. In order to fix this, talk to your teachers! Talk to your friends, talk to admin, and let them know how you feel. We should all work towards making Lakeland a better school because it will improve our own experiences for all of high school.

Small Business Showcase: Fall 2022

Shabby Chic Sundae with Mrs. Hord

McKinley Pietila

I interviewed our very own Mrs. Hord about her small business, Shabby Chic Sundae. She makes Themed Journals and Altered Books. These journals are intricate, layered, and incredibly beautiful. I asked her why she started her business and she gave a meaningful thought out answer. "Words have always been my life - I have always written down important/special quotes in journals and notebooks, and I'd keep fragments of papers, etc. that had important writing on it. I got the idea to decorate these books, and then it turned into creating what's called a "junk journal". I started an Instagram showcasing my "junk journals" and people started to request custom orders. I then opened my Etsy shop and now make custom books for people regularly." Next I asked her if making these custom journals was something she enjoyed, or if it was strictly money motivated. "Absolutely. It began as my hobby before it turned into a business. Crafting is therapeutic for me. It puts me in a good headspace." Finding your passion is so important, and can truly help your life. The best jobs for you are the ones that you enjoy, and seeing Mrs. Hord being able to do this is certainly inspirational for her students and people who know her in general. I asked her what else she would like to say about her small business, and she had just the thing. "The things I make are very special because they are books that I pour my heart and soul into and they are books that people will write in, keep their photos in, display on a shelf, etc. They are filled with things that are important to other people, so they are cherished. It fills me with such pride, happiness, and joy to know that I'm able to provide people with something to hold their precious memories in." This quote really captures how important small businesses can be for some and just how amazing people feel after buying from their small business. Check out Mrs. Hord's business at @ShabbyChicSundae on all socials!

Mugs Coffee and Grub in White Lake

Abby Deloney

Mugs Coffee & Grub opened at the end of January in 2022, and is located in the shopping center in White Lake off of M-59. They serve mainly coffee and espresso drinks, but also a variety of food, pastries, and deserts. The shop is owned by Mel and Sarah Hussin, who used to own the location in Farmington Hills and moved to White Lake after the Covid-19 hit.

Since opening in White Lake, the store has been very busy, and actually busier than the old location in Farmington. Mel, one of the owners, commented, "This shopping center is great. There are a lot of people here, and with the highway a lot of people drive past us everyday." Business had especially picked up once the large signs on both sides of the store were installed, and the grand opening had taken place.

"We have a lot of great people coming in"

Additionally, one Sunday every month a women's Jeep club called the Jeep Babes will hold an event right outside of the shop, and everyone who comes will go into Mugs to order food and coffee. There can be anywhere from 30-50 Jeeps, and usually 50-90 people who come. Not only do the people themselves provide a lot of business, but the event draws the attention of other people to the store. When asked about his favorite aspect of the White Lake location, Mel responded with, "Probably the people. I think we have a lot of great people coming in, and a lot of people who want to work here." Mugs is one of the few businesses in the area that is fully staffed, and most of the reviews on Google comment on the quality of customer service.

The most successful products sold have been espresso drinks, especially the signature lattes, and the bagel bombs. The signature lattes are usually recommended by the staff, and the most popular have been the Coconut Caramel and the Samoa Cookie lattes. The bagel bombs, the most popular food item, come from a bakery in Oxford called Evergreen's. They are bagels stuffed with a variety of fillings, like savory, fruit, and breakfast bombs.

Overall, Mugs has been very successful since opening its doors last January, and the company is looking forward to the growth of the business in the future. They hope to continuously become more successful and more involved in the community. The feedback from the community since opening has been overwhelmingly positive, and Mel and Sara look forward to the future of Mugs in White Lake. Come check them out!

The Epic Highs and Lows of High School Football

Abby Deloney

This year the Lakeland football team finished with an overall record of 4-5, and an LVC record of 4-4. They defeated Walled Lake Central, South Lyon East, Walled Lake Northern, and Waterford Kettering. Unfortunately, they fell to Milford, Waterford Mott, South Lyon, Carlson, and Walled Lake Western.

After the season ended last year, the team had lost multiple players because of graduating seniors and some juniors leaving. This year's team is smaller and younger than teams of the past, with many of the Varsity players being sophomores. However, many players view this as a positive change. Now that the team is smaller, there are more opportunities for players to bond with each other and form a better connection. Junior offensive lineman and defensive end Drew Carlson comments, "Our team this year is a lot closer, last year we had groups of people on the team, this year it's just one big group. We get along a lot better." Senior slot, corner, and receiver Braxton Godin similarly shared, "We got along more as a team this year." Overall, most players who were on Varsity last year and this year agreed that the team bond is stronger, and everyone gets along as one big family.

"This year it's just one big group. We get along a lot better.

Although the football season ended with a losing streak, the players all left the season with highlights and proud moments, both personal and as a team. Multiple players recognized winning the battle of Bogie Lake against Northern for the 7th year in a row, especially the seniors who celebrated their senior night with the win. Other players, like senior defensive end and center Caden Calhoun, recognized season highlights as some of his own personal achievements. He told us, "I'm top three in tackles. I start both sides of the ball. 4 year varsity player and a 3 year starter. I had 9 tackles, a sack, and a fumble recovery week one against Kettering." Outside of the game, almost all players mentioned being a part of the family and brotherhood of the team itself as a highlight. Junior right guard and nose guard Carson Choe mentioned, "Just meeting everyone and getting closer because I'm one of the only new players and I got to talk to everyone and learned a lot from them. Basically my first year playing and had no idea how to play and I learned a lot from the team and coaches."

All players agreed that the team's greatest strength is their bond and their teamwork. Junior quarterback Sean Latham notes, "Our team chemistry and being able to work together for the team and to make us better. No one really dislikes another person on the team, we are all friends." Senior inside linebacker and slot receiver Trey Rowley mentioned similarly that their greatest strength is "The brotherhood we've formed." Overall, the message coming from players is that the team has a strong foundation of teamwork and friendship that will be used to build a team who gets stronger together, and works harder together. Everyone also agreed that being a part of the family that they love is their favorite part of being on the team. Many mentioned the friendships made through football, and the mentors they have through the coaching staff. Being with each other, and playing the sport together, teaches life lessons that can be applied outside of school.

As this season has come to an end, they are already looking forward to next season and their goals next year. It was agreed that winning more games, beating Milford, winning next year's Homecoming game, and making the playoffs are goals for next season. However, their goals also include overall improvement in their players individually, and improvement with the team as a whole. Their mentality for game time and improving was described by Trey Rowley as "a dog when it's time to eat" and was also noted to be "very intense" by Drew Carlson.

Overall, the team struggled this season with the loss of multiple skilled players. However, the team bond continued to grow and helped to keep the team together through tough times. Despite the many losses, players continued to learn from their experiences and look forward to a more experienced and more talented team.

Our greatest strength is "The brotherhood we've formed."

A Hole in One: Girls Golf's Successful Season

Abby Deloney

The girls golf season came to a close at the beginning of October after the team placed 8th at the regional tournament. They finished with a 3-4 record, beating Waterford United, Walled Lake Central, and Walled Lake Northern.

Unfortunately, they lost to Walled Lake Western, Milford, South Lyon, and South Lyon East. Overall, the girls finished 4th in the conference. This shows steady improvement from last year with their previous 2-5 record and 5th conference placement.

This season also marks the first season with the new coaches: Chris Carlson and Nick Griswold. Coach Carlson is the head coach of the boys golf team, and Coach Griswold is the assistant coach of the boys golf team. Both coaches took over after Coach Milkovich's retirement, and also moved the team to their new home course at Brentwood.

Coach Minna, who was hired last year as the girls JV coach, has continued as the JV coach. All coaches have been setting new goals for the team about becoming more competitive in and out of the conference, and more improvement to become one of the top leagues in the conference. The team is also looking forward to more practice opportunities in the off-season, including a new summer camp and practices at golf simulators during the winter and spring. Overall, the team is expecting to see much improvement in the off-season, and the future seasons to come.

Running to States: Cross Country

Cadence Husted

Coach Verellen and the Lakeland boys cross country team have been thriving this fall at their events. Their hard work will hopefully lead to the desired 8-0 at the dual meet against Walled Lake Northern and Waterford Kettering, as well as at the state championships. At this championship, all of the events will show off their talents and fight for the top position. Coach Verellen says that his fun with the guys whilst getting work done is his favorite part of cross country; also, Verellen stated that "watching the guys grow stronger each day and seeing their enthusiasm to compete at every race is fun to see." Hopefully the joy and hard work of the LHS cross country will propel them to the top.

The girls cross country team has also been working incredibly hard this season with Coach Lebutt. Their summer running and training, as well as their team bonding time (Coach LeButt's favorite aspect of cross country). If you are interested in cross country but don't know if you are a good fit for the program, Coach Verellen says that people that exhibit teamwork, effort, and dedication are a good fit for the sport. Ever since our two wonderful coaches joined the LHS cross country community, the teams have been amazing.

Our Boys Soccer Stars at Lakeland

Cadence Husted

Coach Samson of the LHS boys soccer team has been working hard to get the team to the semi-finals of the district games. Hopefully the boys can beat Milford for a second time; defeating our rival was Coach Samson's favorite memory of the season so far. After twenty years of coaching, Coach Samson says that she loves to see the influences that she has on her team through showing them their full potential. Although she loves to see people work together to become the very best team they can be, Coach Samson also said that "being able to get the team chemistry on and off the field" is a challenge from season to season.

Despite these hardships, anyone who is ready to display hard work, friendship, leadership, and determination in a physical setting is perfect for the team. Also, Coach Samson wants the students of Lakeland High School to remember to cherish these last four years of our academic studies because she knows that great memories and minimal regrets will be the result of deciding to do so. The LHS community wishes Coach Samson and the boys soccer team the best of luck for the rest of the season. Hoping for seasons just like this one in years to come.

Serving the Courts at States: Boys Tennis

Logan Lavelli

Lakeland High School has a flourishing and talented Boys Tennis Team which often finds success and hardware on the court. Their work and dedication to the sport has made Lakeland one of the most fierce and tenacious teams for Boys Tennis in the region. While the season is reaching its crescendo, the players and their work should be recognized as one of the finest divisions of athletics at Lakeland. I talked to Shreyas Talluri, an

LHS Boys Tennis player of four years from the International Academy (IA) West in order to get an insight into one of the best teams in Lakeland

When talking to Shreyas, he talked about the incredible passion he has for tennis saying "It's always been a great passion of mine, and I encourage others to try out the sport". While the team lost by one point in LVC's, they were able to rebound and fight even harder to secure regionals for the school ending their season on a high note. His tennis idol is Rafael Nadal due to his tenacious style of play and never giving up on every point in the match. Shreyas noted that tennis is an easy sport to get into and start playing if you want to be involved in the athletics of Lakeland, and he encourages anyone interested to either email the coaches, or check your emails for the athletics newsletters that come out when the next season starts. Since Boys Tennis is in the fall, their season has already finished, but for girls intrigued by the sport, the next season starts this spring so be on the lookout for more information to come.

Huron Valley Marching Band Steals the Show

Rainah Petersen

Three-and-a-half-hour-long practices, games on some Fridays, and all-day competitions nearly every Saturday may seem like a particularly harsh sports season. But this is what every fall is like for members of the Huron Valley Marching Band.

The Lakeland and Milford Marching Bands combined last year to form the Huron Valley Marching Band, or HVMB. It is made up of students from Lakeland, Milford, and IA West, as well as nominated eighth graders from all three Huron Valley middle schools. This year, there are even two color guard members from West Bloomfield High School. The band's debut show, 2021's "The Beauty of Chaos," earned them ninth place at state championships last year.

The HVMB's 2022 show is entitled "Smooth Criminal." Featuring songs like "Bad Guy" by Billie Eilish and the eponymous "Smooth Criminal" by Michael Jackson, the show is about a plan to steal the world's largest diamond. This year's drum majors are Lakeland juniors Shelby Hamilton, Kipp Mowers, and TJ Worswick; Lakeland senior Samantha Schwartz; and Milford senior Matthew Stewart.

The band competes in the MCBA, or Michigan Competing Band Association, circuit. They perform at competitions throughout September, October, and November. At the MCBA state championships at Ford Field in Detroit on November 5th, they earned tenth place and a score of 75.85. The HVMB will also compete in Grand Nationals at Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis, Indiana, on November 11th. "I'm excited to see how Indy goes," says freshman Elijah Bohannon. "It sounds like it's always

Aside from competitions, the Huron Valley Marching Band performs at football games and parades throughout the year, including the homecoming parades and football games for both Lakeland and Milford and the Lakeland vs. Milford game. They play in the stands during games and perform part of their show at halftime or pregame. Junior Veronica Wichowski says they like playing in "the stands because you get to...cheer on with all of the student section."

Many members' reasons for marching have changed. Wichowski joined "because all my friends were in it, but...now I'm in it just because...I like performing."

Fellow junior Renzo Santia shares similar sentiments. He joined because "all my friends joined" but admits that "marching band...slowly became my life," in a good way. He loves "the community...that's built with marching band. It's very kind and welcoming."

Freshman Cadence Husted, who is in the front ensemble, joined marching band "because I was nominated to [in eighth grade] and I thought it looked cool and I really wanted to be in the drumline at the time." She wasn't placed in the drumline, but she says that "I enjoy...front ensemble" now.

Overall, the Huron Valley Marching Band perfectly captures the spirit of a family working hard and having fun. "If anyone wants to join marching band, they definitely should," says Bohannon. As Wichowski puts it, "Join band. It's cool!"
